

The Best Ice Cream The D.C. Area Has To Offer

Wednesday, June 3, 2015

Rejoice, D.C., for our long national frozen yogurt nightmare appears to be drawing to a close. Froyo may be marginally healthier, but nothing beats the decadence of real ice cream on a hot day. That sweet, sweet combination of sugar and milk fat hits all the right notes in our tastebuds. There's a good reason people eat ice cream when they're in a bad mood—it's happiness in scoop-form. To celebrate the start of summer, we're collectively screaming about our favorite ice cream spots below.

KREIDER FARMS ICE CREAM: The Amish serve up buckets of fresh ice cream, including a rich and creamy peach with big chunks of fresh fruit. Even better, Kreiders supplies ice cream for the fantastic milkshakes at Lantz Restaurant next door in the Amish market. These huge $3 cups blow away shakes twice the price. Try the intense chocolate peanut butter, the decadently buttery butter pecan, or the fresh strawberry. And if you have room left, grab a dozen of the fluffy, fresh donuts at the Stoltzfus Bakery stand. —Pat Padua

Kreider Farms Ice Cream can be found at the Dutch Country Farmer's Market, 9701 Fort Meade Rd, Laurel, Md. Thursday 9 a.m.-6 p.m., Friday 9 a.m.-8 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m.-3 p.m.
